

QUINTILLION

THE DIGITAL OILFIELD IS HERE.

The only telecommunications operator to build a submarine and terrestrial fiber optic cable network in the U.S. Arctic, Quintillion is a leading infrastructure provider of high-speed broadband serving significant oil and gas production areas.

High-speed broadband networks are revolutionizing the way oil and gas companies do business. With exponentially greater bandwidth, oil and gas producers are able to leverage technology, such as video on the well pad and local Wi-Fi access for field service personnel, to support maximum production and identify issues before they become problems.

Quintillion's existing fiber network can extend into remote locations, providing leading oil and gas producers with the bandwidth they need while maintaining mobility and end-user device choice. Operators can implement a comprehensive network that enables two-way communications, reduces operating expenses, and utilizes advanced security protections.

With high-speed wireless broadband, producers can:

- Leverage resources
- Mitigate and respond to issues
- Analyze data
- Increase security
- Ensure safety and compliance
- Increase production
